

Russ Barnett is a retired director of the Kentucky Institute for the Environment and Sustainable Development at the University of Louisville where he still conducts research and teaches undergraduate seminars. Previously served as Deputy Secretary for the Cabinet of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection under 4 governors. He has served on the board of the Salt River Watershed Watch for 25 years and is an advocate for environmental and historic research and documentation.